

GET DOWN TO YEAR'S WORK

Public Schools Will Start in for Business Tomorrow.

ENROLLMENT VERY HEAVY

Governor Montague Enters His
Two Younger Children at Central School.

The real work of the session in the public schools of the city will begin to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock, the enrollment of all the pupils having been completed on Friday.

Never before did the various educational institutions of the city, and especially those under the free school system, open up under more favorable auspices. All during the long summer months the superintendent, secretary, and teachers, as well as the local school board, held frequent meetings, devising plans for a closer co-operation during the session just begun, and reducing the work to a more scientific basis. The result has been that all are familiar with the changes in the system made necessary by the new Constitution and are starting out on their year's work in perfect harmony.

Superintendent Fox and Secretary Walford, who are the officers in direct touch with the schools, are highly pleased with the outlook for a fine session's work.

Following are the comparative figures, showing the entries for this and last year in the public schools of the city:

	1904.	1903.
White.
High School.....	701	621
Nicholson.....	468	467
Springfield.....	736	824
Bellevue.....	714	714
Marshall.....	601	578
Central.....	612	576
Leigh.....	667	663
Madison.....	611	592
West End.....	550	520
East End.....	472	491
Randolph.....	533	599
	6,756	6,547
Colored.
Normal School.....	272	247
Fulton.....	4	47
East End.....	606	652
Valley.....	741	771
Navy Hill.....	560	615
Baker.....	636	715
Moore.....	361	312
Monroe.....
	3,845	3,936

Governor Montague has entered two of his little children in the public schools. He took little Lillian and Janet over to the Central building on Friday and had them enrolled for the session.

AT MONTICELLO.

A Reception to the New President of the University.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA., Sept. 17.—Mrs. Carl von Mayhoff and Jefferson M. Levy gave a reception at Monticello this afternoon from 4 to 6, to Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, the newly-appointed President of the University of Virginia. Two hundred accepted the invitations extended. Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. John M. Holcombe, of Hartford, Conn., and Ex-Governor D. H. Chamberlain, of South Carolina. Mrs. Holcombe is a member of the Board of Lady Managers of the St. Louis Exposition, and vice-president of the Society of Colonial Dames of Connecticut.

It was peculiarly appropriate that a welcome should be extended to the resident at the place at which was the home of him, who founded the University, who planned not only its buildings, but also its scheme of operations, and whose wise and far-seeing judgment is still a controlling force in the affairs of this unique institution.

CHESTERFIELD COURT.

White Man Sentenced to Jail.

Turner to be Tried.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

CHESTERFIELD, VA., September 17.—Gus Rabieski, one of the few white men who have been in jail at late at this place, was tried to-day for striking and dangerously wounding V. E. Woodfin with a broken wine bottle. He pleaded guilty. He was given six months in jail.

Court adjourned until next Tuesday, when the trial of Phil. Turner, for highway robbery, in shooting Mr. Albin Netherwood from ambush and snatching his satchel with about $500 in money, will be begun. Turner's case is the most serious on the docket, and a good many think he will be given capital punishment.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Negro Driver Fell From His Cart and Was Run Over.

Henry Johnson, a colored driver for Contractor Charles Weinbrun, was run over and killed by his own cart yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock.

The negro was hauling granite from the Chesterfield quarries. He fell from his cart, and the wheels crushed his life out. The accident occurred just beyond Manchester. Dr. Perkins attended him, but he could do nothing. The remains were turned over to relatives.

FAIRBANKS SPEAKS

IN WEST VIRGINIA

(By Associated Press.)

PARKERSBURG, W. VA., Sept. 17.—Five thousand persons heard Charles W. Fairbanks, the Republican nominee for the vice-presidency, here to-day, when he spoke at the City Park, opening the Republican campaign in West Virginia. Senator Fairbanks insisting that the real issue of the campaign were the tariff and the gold standard, and appealed to the voters not to lose sight of them.

Hanging in Nelson.

LOVINGTON, VA., Sept. 17.—James H. Caul, colored, was hanged here yesterday at 11:40 o'clock. The crime for which he paid the penalty was the murder of his sweetheart, Belle Thompson, on the 13th day of last May, near Nelly's Ford, this county.

Caul would have been twenty-two years old next month, and was of a bright ginger-cake color and had a good face. The body was shipped to the University of Virginia.

Fought to a Draw.

(By Associated Press.)

SEATTLE, WASH., Sept. 17.—The fifteen-round boxing contest between Billy Woods, the Los Angeles colored middleweight, and Tommy Burns (white), of Chicago, has resulted in a draw.

SUCCESS

Is the Watchword of The Cable Company.

Has it ever occurred to you why The Cable Company should have succeeded in building up a business which in volume ranks second to none in the world in the music line?

THERE IS A REASON FOR THIS!

In fact, several reasons, and among the most potent are the following which fairly sound the key-note to success.

(1.)
THE CABLE COMPANY'S LINE OF PIANOS AND ORGANS IS THE MOST SATISFACTORY LINE OF PIANOS MANUFACTURED.

(2.)
THE CABLE COMPANY'S PIANOS COMBINE QUALITY WITH LIBERALITY IN PRICES.

(3.)
OUR CUSTOMERS WILL TELL YOU THAT WE ARE LIBERAL PEOPLE TO DEAL WITH.

Follow the Lead of the Ones Who Know.
BUY FROM THE CABLE COMPANY.

The Mason & Hamlin Piano
Is Easily in the First Rank of High Grade Pianos.

CONOVER, CABLE, KINGSEY, WELLINGTON, DEKOVEN, SCHUBERT.

INSTRUMENTS THAT IMPRESS YOU WITH THEIR VALUE.

Sheet Music This Week Half Price.
Instrumental and Vocal.

Phonographs and Graphophones.
You Know the Columbia Machine.

The Best in Every Way.

Phonograph Records 25c.
Don't pay any more, you can get all you need here for 25 cents.

THE CABLE COMPANY

J. G. CORLEY, Manager.

HAZING IS DEAD AT THE V. M. I.

Class Reports One of Its Own Members for Mal-treatment.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

LEXINGTON, VA., Sept. 17.—That the class sentiment at the Virginia Military Institute is against hazing in any form was illustrated within a few days after the opening of the school this year. Cadet Hutchinson, of Pittsburgh, a third class man, attempted to haze a "rat," by chastising him with a broomstick. The matter was brought to the attention of the president of the third class, who promptly reported the offense to the superintendent and General Shipp at once dismissed the offender from the school.

The cadet who was hazed was not injured at all and the regular attendance upon his classes was not interfered with, but the attempt to haze is a breach of discipline, condemned alike by cadets and institute authorities.

PERILS OF THE SEA.

Man Lost From a Tow—A Sail Boat Without an Occupant.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

NORFOLK, VA., Sept. 17.—The ocean-going tug General Thomas, arriving here today with two barges from Providence, reported the loss of a seaman during Wednesday's gale. The man was washed overboard and drowned. The three-masted schooner reported abandoned with a load of lumber after off the Carolee light house, is thought to be the Mary Saunders, which left the Cape Tuesday night for New York. Captain Soper, of the Saunders, had his wife and daughter on board.

The tug J. W. Murray, brought into port to-day a sail boat belonging to Hooper's Island lighthouse, in the Potomac River. The boat was found drifting in the storm. A pair of crabs were found in it, and a load of stores for the lighthouse. There was no trace of the occupant.

Deaths in Lancaster.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

IRVINGTON, VA., September 17.—Mrs. J. H. Davenport died Friday at Lancaster Courthouse, after a protracted illness from consumption, aged thirty-five years. She leaves a husband and three small children.

Mrs. Davenport, before marriage, was Miss Bessie Gilliam, a daughter of the late Dr. James S. Gilliam.

On Monday Captain William T. Sneed, of Upper Lancaster, departed this life, after some months of feeble health. He remains were laid to rest at White Chapel this county.

THE SENIORS REINSTATED

All Will Return Except Three,
That the Faculty Will Not Receive.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

RALPHIGH, N. C., Sept. 17.—Twenty-three of the thirty-two seniors who rebelled against the rules and left the Agricultural and Mechanical College, have been reinstated. All the others will probably return this week, except three whom the faculty decline to receive. The class now numbers thirty-one. Reinstated cadets have the same offices of trust and honor they held before.

A charter is issued for the old popular distillery company, of Milton, Caswell county; capital, $50,000; Thomas M. Angle and others. The output will be 2,500 gallons per day.

MAIL AGENT ILL.

A Lunatic Negro Probably Fatally Injures His Wife.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

AM. and V. Sept. 17.—Postal Clerk Hawkins, on the Southern Railway train that left Richmond for the South at 12:30 to-day, was taken very ill with cramps soon after leaving Richmond. It was necessary for him to be held by parties on the train. A physician was with him part of the way, and on reaching here he was taken from the train, and under the care of Dr. C. C. Eggleston, is at the Amelia Hotel. No mail was put off the train, owing to the agent's condition.

A lunatic negro named William Robertson struck his wife with a knife early this morning, injuring her skull. She may not recover. The negro is in jail. The family had been advised by the doctor that the negro was not safe.

A VETERAN'S DEATH.

Confederates Save a Federal Soldier From a Pauper's Grave.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

BRISTOL, TENN., September 17.—Francis J. Conity, who was a soldier in Company F, Eighteenth New York Infantry, was here to-day, aged sixty-two years. He was an inmate of the mountain branch of the National Soldiers' Home at Johnson City, and came to Bristol on a furlough.

Notwithstanding this, Governor John P. Smith, of the home, declined to take charge of the remains, and gave them burial, claiming he had no jurisdiction outside of the home reservation. But for the action of ex-Confederate veterans and others here, who purchased a casket and sent the remains to the home, Conity's body would have been given the burial of a pauper.

CRUSHED HIS NOSE.

Candidates for Treasurer of James City County.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

WILLIAMSBURG, VA., Sept. 17.—Pink Garrett and his step-son, Albert Demary, Pinye Grove, fought last night, and Garrett crushed his nose badly. Dr. D. J. King, who attended the injured man, said that the blow came near behind the ear. A warrant has been sworn out for Garrett's arrest.

Felton is being circulated in the interest of S. S. Hankins, and also of J. R. Belamy, who are candidates for the office of treasurer of James City County. The office of William Smith, made vacant by the death of the late Thomas G. Wynne.

Judge Tyler was asked to make the appointment. There is over three years of the term yet to be filled.

The Baker Murder Trial.

SUPPLY, VA., Sept. 17.—The case of Dr. J. M. Baker, charged with the killing of Dr. H. T. Bass, in Tarboro, N. C., was given to the jury at 6 o'clock this evening, after a long day of argument. The jury began yesterday, and will continue to-day.

The jury was asked to make the appointment. There is over three years of the term yet to be filled.

Negro Baptist Convention.

(By Associated Press.)

AUSTIN, TEXAS, September 17.—Today's proceedings of the Colored National Baptist Convention were devoted principally to a discussion of the advancement of the young negro in the South. The subject was delivered by the subject and several reports were made by those who have been most active in the work.

This afternoon's trains brought to the city hundreds of negroes from every section of the South to be present to-morrow upon the occasion of the Sunday services.

At to-night's session Chicago was selected as the next meeting place. New Orleans giving away with the assurance that it should have the meeting in 1906.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, W. L. Candler, Nashville, Tenn.; secretary, Prof. R. B. Hudson, Selma, assistant secretary; J. H. A. Cyrus, Port Royal, Va.; treasurer; S. W. Bacont, Kansas City, Mo.; statistician; Robert Mitchell, Kansas City, auditor.

Personals and Briefs.

Mrs. E. H. Peterkin's condition is much improved. She was able to sit up for a short time yesterday.

Miss Mary C. A. Traylor, of Norfolk, passed through Richmond yesterday after spending the summer in the mountains.

Dr. A. E. Turman, who has been in New York for several days, returned to the city yesterday.

Miss Ray R. Bloom left for Catonsville, Md., to attend Mount De Sales Academy, accompanied by her parents, who have just returned from a visit to the city.

Mr. and Mrs. John Joseph Long, of No. 206 E. Grace, arrived in the city yesterday from Danville.

Dr. and Mrs. Beedles have returned from St. Louis.

Mrs. J. Willard Craig and Miss Mildred Craig, guests of the Montreal, Can., to visit Mrs. Craig's mother.

Miss Myrtle E. Phenix left Tuesday, for St. Louis to take in the Exposition.

Miss Caroline Boykin, of Suffolk, Va., will be the guest of Miss Willie Chapman Crutchfield for several days.

Miss Alice H. Blair, having returned to the city, will spend the week at her residence, No. 301 W. Main.

Mr. J. N. Kaufmann, the well known musician, has been engaged to take charge of the orchestra for the Academy of Music in Petersburg, which became a part of the annual class this season. Mr. Kaufmann has selected capable assistants, and the Academy will have a fine orchestra.

Rev. F. J. C. J. Couper, representing the Methodist Episcopal Church, of New York, will be at Murphy's Hotel to-morrow and Tuesday.

Quaker Gelatine

ABSOLUTELY PURE.

Coupon in Each Package.

Ask Your Grocer.

Kaufmann & Co.

This Store
will be Closed
all day
To-Morrow
(Monday).

.. Holiday ..

was in the city yesterday. He will visit St. George T. Abraham in protracted meetings in Chesterfield county.

Rev. Henry Pearce Atkins will preach at West End Christian Church, on Morris Street, between Main and Floyd Avenue, morning subject will be "The Business of Believers." The subject at night will be "The Truth as it is in Jesus."

Mr. Frank D. Beckham, of this city, leaves to-day for Boston and other New England points.

Secretary of the Commonwealth D. Q. Eggleston is contemplating a trip to St. Louis, and expects to go to the Exposition in a few days.

Misses L. J. and A. M. Lynch, of this city, will leave next week for St. Louis to attend the Exposition.

Mr. W. H. Good Johnson, of Goodland county, a student at the University College of Medicine, has returned to the city and will be a member of the dental grade class.

Rev. John W. Ryland, of Church View, Middlesex county, who has been ill for a month at the Virginia Hospital, has left much improved.

Mrs. M. L. Points, of Church Hill, left yesterday for Lynchburg, to visit her mother, Mrs. J. L. Pile, and later will go to Alderson, W. Va., to visit her sister, Mrs. Alex. McVeigh Miller.

The second person to be conducted (trip to St. Louis by Mrs. Jennie Pelouze, No. 720 E. Marshall Street, promises to be a most enjoyable one, as the train is crowded with the trip on the Locomotives and automobiles in the grounds and around the city.

Mr. C. Glover, of Raleigh, N. C., was in the city on business, stopping at the Lexington Hotel.

Rev. J. W. Mitchell preaches to-day in Upper Zion Church, Caroline county.

Mr. William Skelton Rose, son of Edward S. Rose, Esq., of "Rose" cottage, leaves to-day for a three-day visit to West. His intention is to return ere "the roses come again."

Misses Amelia and Theresa Walther and Miss Minnie Walther and Miss Nellie Thorp left Monday for a ten days' trip for New York.

Negro Brings Suit.

In the City Circuit Court yesterday suit was filed by Paul C. Ensey vs. Rev. W. L. Taylor, alleging $10,000 damages. Both the litigants are colored. The latter being an officer in the True Reformers' Bank.

Prince Bismarck Sinking.

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—Prince Herbert Bismarck, according to the latest news from Friedrichshafen, is steadily sinking.

Mayo's Bookstore.

(Editor of The Times-Dispatch.)

Sir,—In answer to correspondent, you stated on my authority that Mayo's book store was on the south side of Main, between the city of Williamsburg and Fourteenth, but near Thirteenth. Another correspondent says:

"The book labels of Frederick A. Mayo and Company state location of book store as 'four doors below the Bell Tavern.' As the 'Bell' stood on the corner lately occupied by the St. Charles, at Fifteenth and Main, Mayo's was about on present site of Main Street station."

"The label of Frederick A. Mayo does not state the location of business when he was the individual proprietor."

My answer of The Times-Dispatch to the query is substantially correct. I give letter for letter, word for word from the directory of 1819:

"F. A. Mayo, book seller, ss of E. bl. 13th and 14th Sts.; first from 13th St."

John Maddox, publisher, tells us "that No. 1 will always be the next to the corner, instead of the corner itself."

It is thus made clear that Mayo's store was in 1819 next to the corner, tenement long known as Crawford's, before which, at the curb stood a revolutionary cannon. After Mayo's removal the store was a narrow one of little depth, and was successively by others until 1847, when the sign of Charles Thurston, a worthy Scot, was suspended from above the doorway. I avail myself of a seeming misunderstanding to give a brief account of the finding of the first city directory, purchased at nearly a half century ago at an auction sale of the library of William Galt, a retired merchant of the firm of Galt and Johnson. It lay in a bundle of books deemed to be of the trashy sort. At the time, it appeared to be the only copy in existence, and two or more copies were subsequently. My copy was passed to certain old gentlemen for examination, some of whom have made their pencil marks, or comments on its pages. The late Messrs. Mordecai (author of the Bygone Days), Dr. A. Langstaff, and William John Clark, because deeply interested in its contents. Corrections of defective typography are made by sundry hands, and the number of survivors in the alphabetical list of citizens noted. Miscalculation his initials to his note: "About 1,100 names; 44 survivors." T. A. Langstaff adds within brackets: "May 1, 1800, I made 7116 the survivors are checked thus V," and William John Clark, referring to these 288, October 8th: "There are only 23 survivors of all named in this directory." Another old gentleman whose handwriting is without mistake or error, opposite to the list, which give the names of those then serving the city in all its departments and also of those serving as directors in the two State banks. "I know them all." Well might he have known them all, for every one of them was a member of his day. Andrew Stevenson, Philip N. Nicholas, John Brockenbrough, John Rutledge, Hilary Baker, Abel P. Uphur and other worthies sat in the Common Hall as the City Council was then called.

It is a great pleasure to have been the happiness of our local commentators as they pored over the pages of the rare little duodecimo and conned every name from A to Z.

"Full well I wist
A book's a 'fame's executor';
A book's the law that makes the teifer
That binds the quick and dead together!"
C. M. A.

A DASHING PICK-POCKET

Tries to Relieve the Chief of Police of His Watch.

WRECKED STEAMER TOWED IN

Lively Times Expected Among Republican Politicians—Saloon
Keeper Heavily Fined.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

NEWPORT NEWS, VA., September 17.

An enterprising pickpocket this morning made an effort to relieve Chief of Police T. A. Johnson of his gold watch and chain, while the chief was standing on the sidewalk on Washington Avenue, watching a crowd surging through the doors of a new store, which was having its formal opening. The chief was peering about with his eagle eyes when he felt a hand pass across his breast and jerk his watch from the pocket of his negligee shirt. The chain was fastened in a button-hole and the thief turned loose his prize.

The British steamship Costarican was towed into port to-day by one of the Merritt and Chapman Wrecking Company tugs, and taken to the shipyard for repairs. The vessel went on the rocks near Kingston, Jamaica, in a recent storm, and was damaged to a considerable extent.

Felstein, a Warwick county saloon-keeper, was fined $100 by a jury in the Corporation Court yesterday for selling liquor on Sunday. The Bloodfield Justice dismissed a case against Felstein and fined Officer Z. T. Jones, who entered the saloon, $25. The Anti-Saloon League then brought the matter to the attention of the grand jury.

An Opportunity for Capital in Virginia.

To the Editor of The Times-Dispatch:

Sir,—A man having made money and wishing to invest a part of his fortune for the benefit of his country, but for no other reason, which shall be accessible to the public, which shall be his philanthropic impulse, he is looking for a large question, admitting of various answers, according to the character of the man, the amount of his fortune, or finally they attempt to foster a spirit of self-help, to create a demand for what they consider ought to be supplied. "If I can't do it," says Mr. Carnegie, "I'll tax myself for books, here is a library."

From whatever motives, personal, or for the benefit of the community, purely ethical yearnings, or what not, we have in this generation (thanks to our progress) a large number of men who are interested in the United States in the way of public and quasi-public foundations. The greater share of this beneficent work is being done in the East, the West and the Middle West, and the South, and the reason for this is only just now beginning vigorously to recover from a crisis that may have been a crisis to other sections, but it is not one that involved the sapping of every vital force. If it is to be added that the South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction, is in need of judicious help along the lines of up-to-date philanthropy, does not now, and will never be, a more fertile field for the sowing of such cultivation as the East, or even the West, has perhaps found salutary? In the East, the West, and the Middle West, the East has been playing the "humming bird" of its own kind, and the South, while potentially rich in the way of philanthropy, is not yet ready to receive the seed that is sown for it. It is not a question of money, but of the sowing of the seed, and the reaping of the harvest. The South, in the midst of its reconstruction,